

The Capacity Charts are based upon 2,000 foot elevation, 80 degree F combustion air temperature, firing with 15% excess air (3% O₂) and standard diffuser blade settings. If job conditions vary from above conditions, capacity rates may vary.

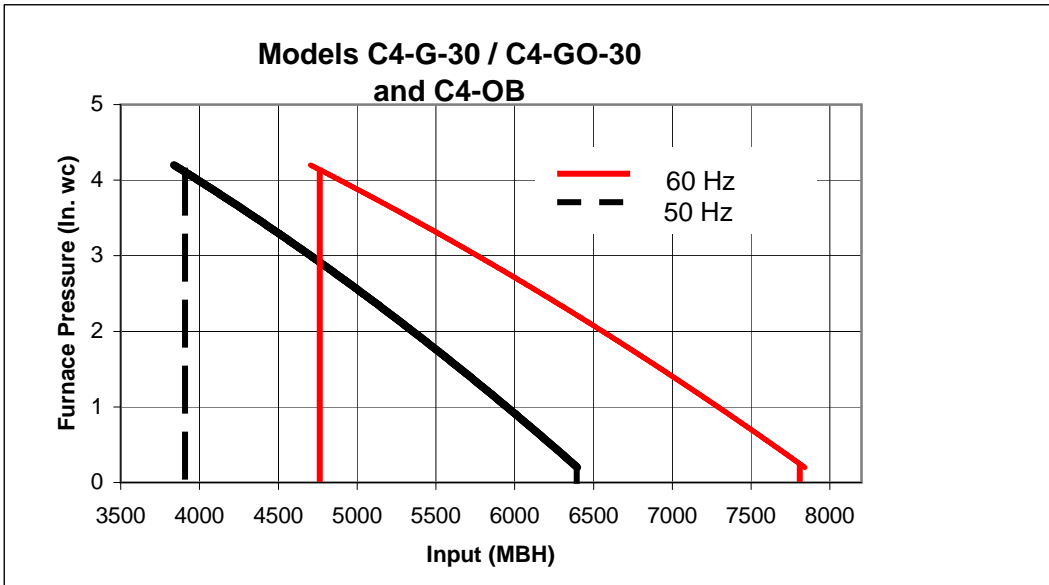

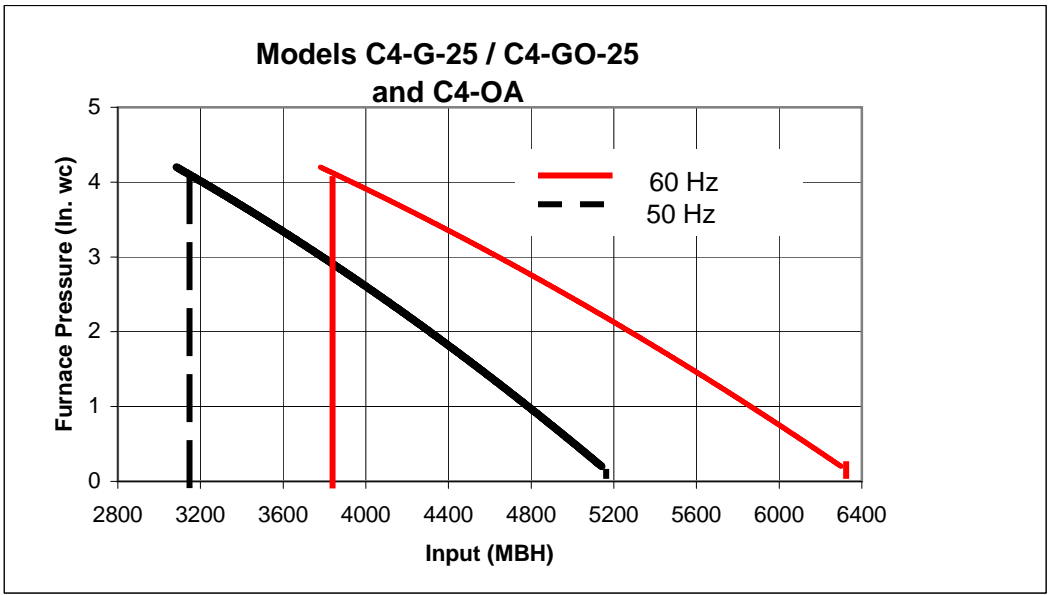

The Capacity Charts are based upon 2,000 foot elevation, 80 degree F combustion air temperature, firing with 15% excess air (3% O₂) and standard diffuser blade settings. If job conditions vary from above conditions, capacity rates may vary.

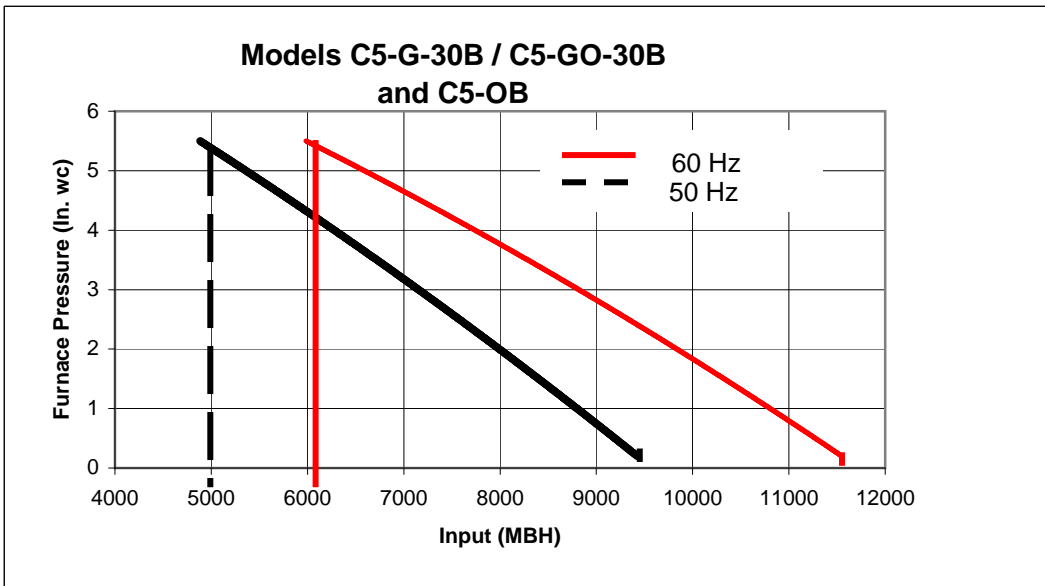

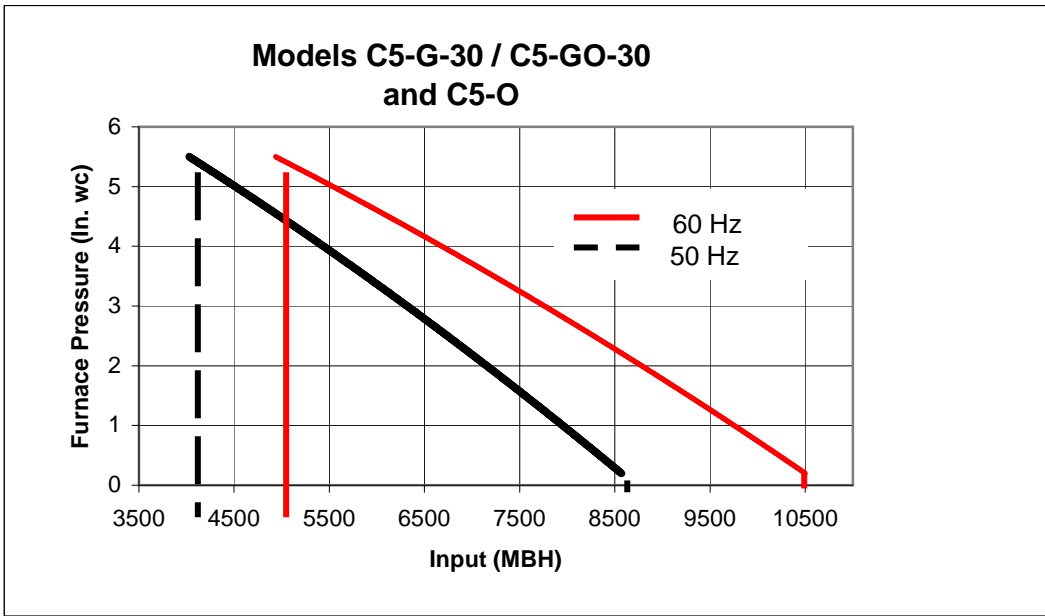

The Capacity Charts are based upon 2,000 foot elevation, 80 degree F combustion air temperature, firing with 15% excess air (3% O₂) and standard diffuser blade settings. If job conditions vary from above conditions, capacity rates may vary.

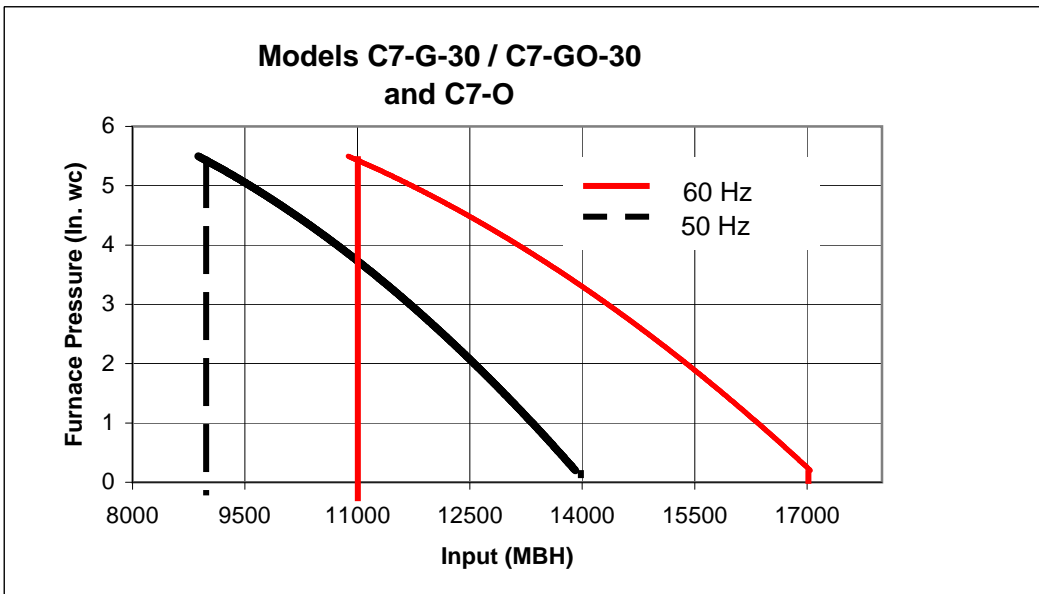

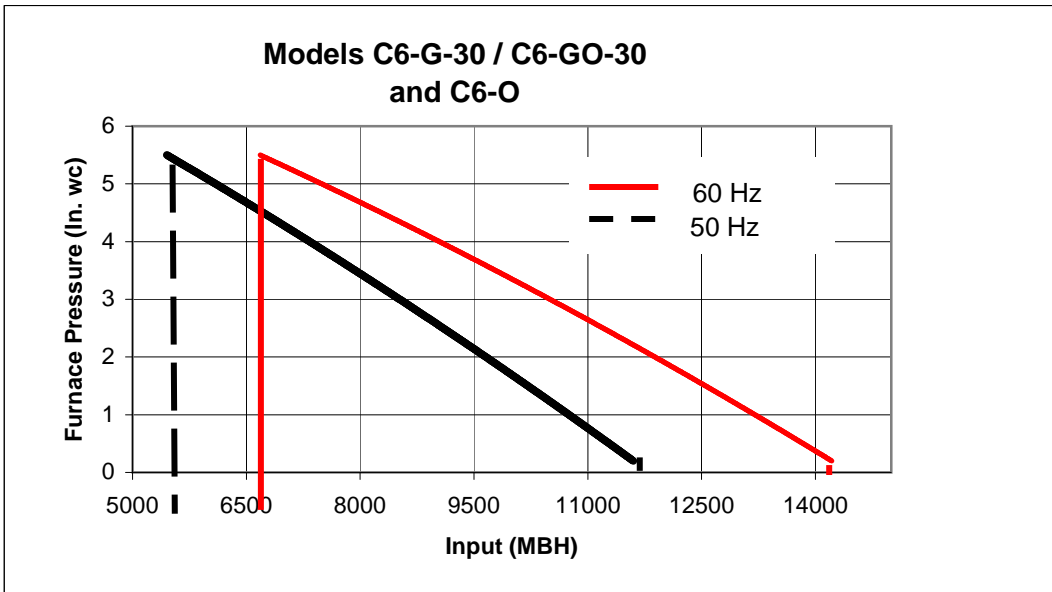

The Capacity Charts are based upon 2,000 foot elevation, 80 degree F combustion air temperature, firing with 15% excess air (3% O₂) and standard diffuser blade settings. If job conditions vary from above conditions, capacity rates may vary.

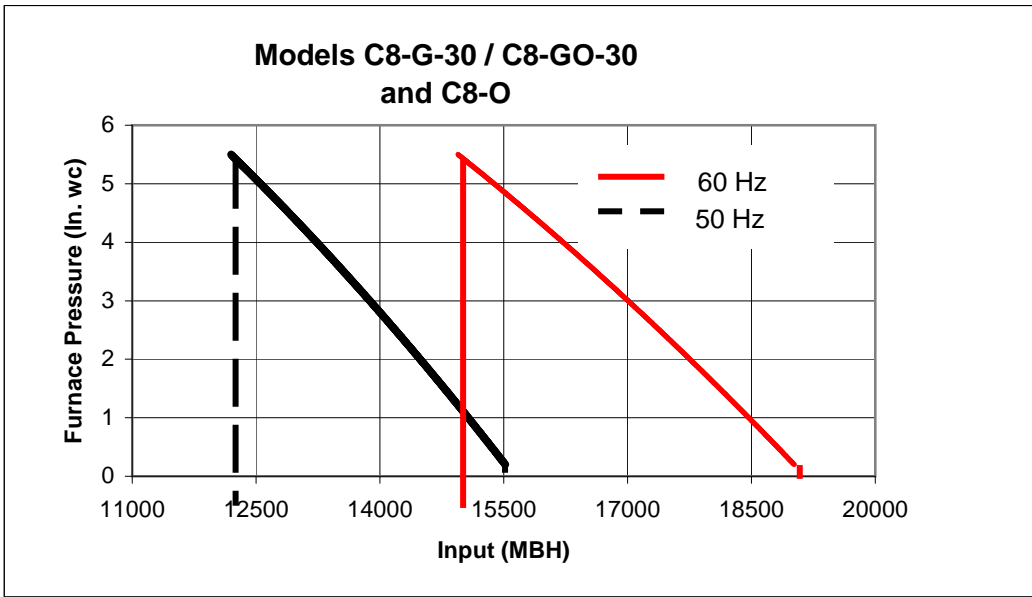

The Capacity Charts are based upon 2,000 foot elevation, 80 degree F combustion air temperature, firing with 15% excess air (3% O₂) and standard diffuser blade settings. If job conditions vary from above conditions, capacity rates may vary.

The Capacity Charts are based upon 2,000 foot elevation, 80 degree F combustion air temperature, firing with 15% excess air (3% O₂) and standard diffuser blade settings. If job conditions vary from above conditions, capacity rates may vary.

The Capacity Charts are based upon 2,000 foot elevation, 80 degree F combustion air temperature, firing with 15% excess air (3% O₂) and standard diffuser blade settings. If job conditions vary from above conditions, capacity rates may vary.

The Capacity Charts are based upon 2,000 foot elevation, 80 degree F combustion air temperature, firing with 15% excess air (3% O₂) and standard diffuser blade settings. If job conditions vary from above conditions, capacity rates may vary.